World #2 Lee Westwood is one of 10 PING pros in Atlanta this week for the PGA Championship. See preview next page.

JERTSON PLAYING PGA WITH G20's HE DESIGNED

Marty Jertson, a senior design engineer at PING, is playing this week's PGA Championship with G20 irons, which he designed. Jertson, 30, qualified for the season's final major by finishing T-5 at the PGA Professional National Championship in June. Jertson tees off in the first round Thursday at 12:55 with Richard Green of Australia, and Hiroyuki Fujita of Japan.

SHOT OF THE WEEK

Bubba Watson watches one of his many long drives at the WGC-Bridgestone with a look of serious determination. There was none longer than his 415-yarder on the 16th hole on Saturday (when he averaged 363.5 off the tee). He used his new G20 driver to full effect, tying for the second-longest drive on tour this season. He reached the 667-yard par 5 in two with a 4-iron.
